One day, big pig brings a bag of balloons to the dog park.

"Watch this," says big pig to dod and bob. big pig blows up a balloon.

pop
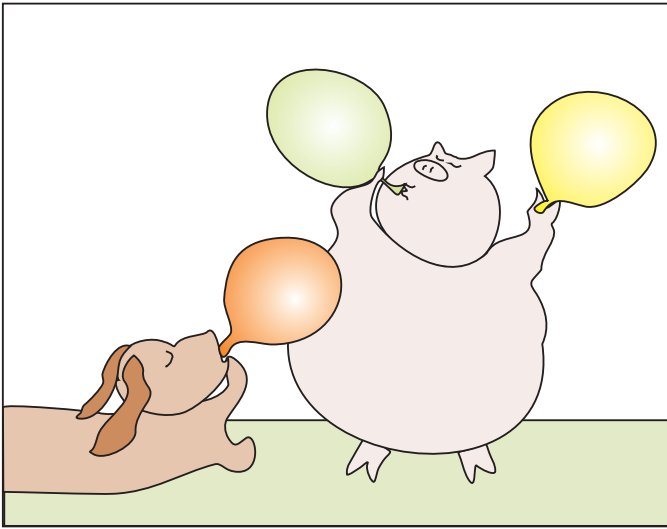

Then he sticks it with a pin, and it goes pop! dod laughs, and bob wags his tail.

"My turn!" says dod.
dod huffs and puffs
and blows up another
balloon; then he pokes
it with a pin. pop!

bob has no mouth,
so dod blows up a
balloon for him. bob pokes the balloon with his tail. pop!

"Let's pop lots of balloons," says dod. So dod and big pig blow up lots of balloons.
bob holds the balloons with his tail. They have lots and lots of balloons to pop.

Uh, oh! bob has too many balloons. bob goes up, up and up.

And because dod and bob are different ends of the same dog, dod also goes up, up and up.
"Quick!" says dod "Somebody pop the balloons!"

"Don't worry!" says big pig. "I will pop the balloons."

Because dod is such a long dog, big pig has to climb up and up and up to reach the balloons.
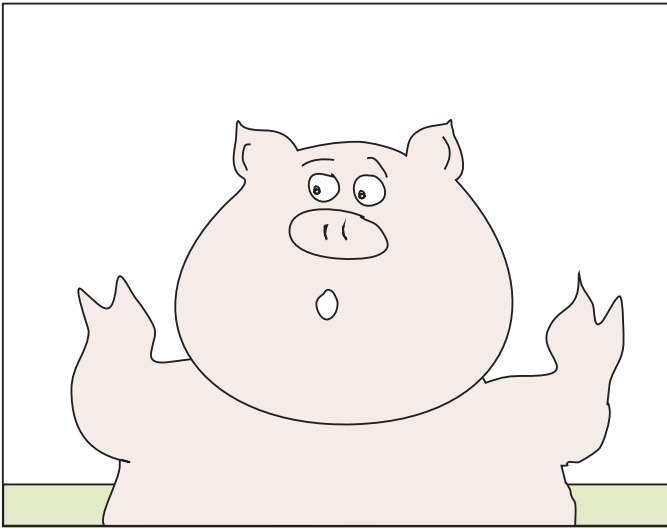

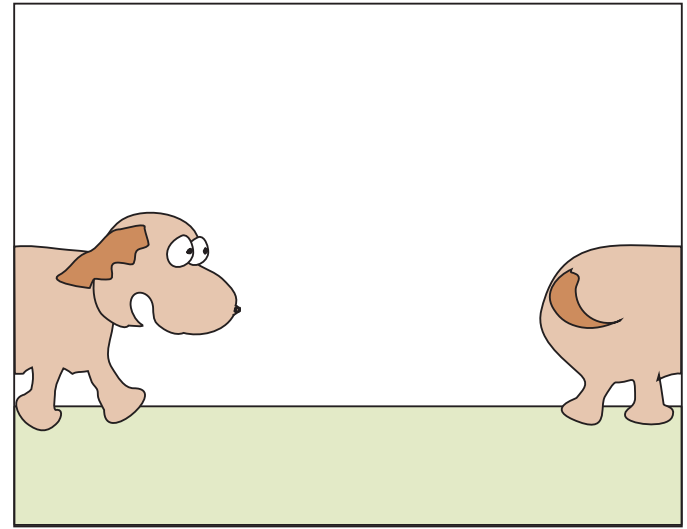

pop... pop...
pop... pop...
pop...
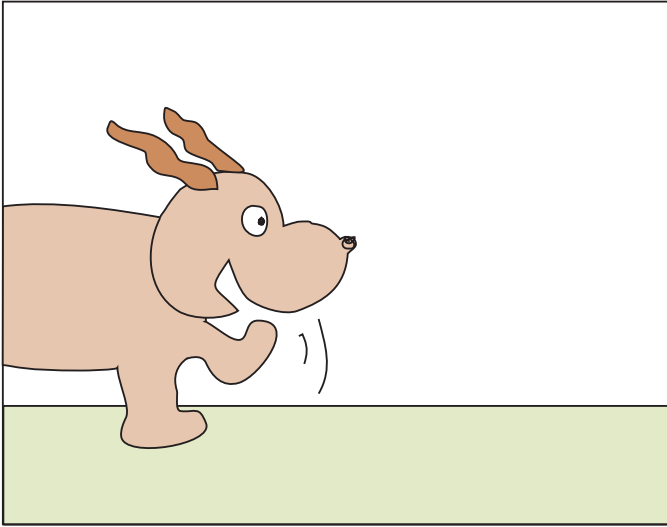

They all fall down to the ground. Hurray! dod and bob are saved!

big pig looks at dod and bob and scratches his head.

"Did you know," says big pig, "that you guys are different ends of the same dog?"

dod looks at bob, and bob looks at dod. Could it be? Could they really be just one dog?

"Nah!" says dod.

"We're friends — best

friends forever!"

bob wags his tail.

He couldn't agree more.
