Quick Start Guide

Read the book WITH your child. You read the “regular” text, and he/she reads the big, red words, sort of like reading the different parts in a play.

Help your child sound out the words as needed.

Read the book several times. This helps develop the eye muscles and left-to-right reading patterns that are necessary for reading.

Don't rush it. Body builders don't train in a day – neither does a child.

If your child is having difficulty, he/she might need more practice with the alphabet. Get a fun book about the alphabet, and read that lots of times. Then come back to Progressive Phonics.

And most important of all, HAVE FUN!

Word list:

dot got hot lot not pot

cop hop mop pop top

dog hog log

cod nod

on

Bob job rob sob

of

box fox ox

Today the sun
was much too hot –
too hot to run,
too hot to play ball,
and much too hot
to have fun at all.

I got a lot of toys for my birthday. I got cake and ice cream too. And if you are very nice to me, I will share a lot with you.

I was hungry, so I got a pot, I got some carrots, and I got a lot of peas.

Then I got the pot very, very hot; then I got a spoon, and I said, "Yes, please!"

Little “i” and little “j” both have got a dot, while all the other letters do not have a dot. But the big “I” and the big “J” do not have a dot – maybe they are much too tall to have a dot at all.

How far can you hop – can you hop, hop, hop?
And can you hop as fast as a mop, mop, mop?

I can't find the mop,

so I can't mop the floor.

But if I don't mop the floor,

I can't go out and play.

So I guess I'll have to find the mop right behind the door.

I can't pop balloons when the baby is sleeping. I can't pop balloons when the baby is eating.

If I can't pop balloons near the baby at all, then why are balloons

all over the wall?

To make a sandwich for a cop,

you start with a slice of bread.

On top of the bread, you put some cheese. On top of the cheese, you smash some peas. On top of the peas, you mash a potato — and on top of all this, you add a tomato.

My dog likes music, and my dog likes to dance. My dog likes to dress in shoes and fancy pants. My dog doesn't bark, and he won't play ball — I don't think my dog is a dog at all.

My dog and I sat down on a log. The log rolled over poor me and my dog.

So next time I want to sit on a log, maybe instead I should sit on my dog?

If a hog eats like a hog,

are his manners good or bad?

And if a hog eats like a hog,

is his mother sad or glad?

My dog sleeps like a log –

a bomb going off wouldn't wake my dog.

So if I want to go out and play,

I must wait for my dog, sometimes all day.

If I nod my head
when I want to say no,
and I nod my head
when I want to say yes — then what my nod means is anyone's guess.

A cod is a fish that lives in the ocean. A cod swims all day; he is always in motion.

On Mother's Day, to show his devotion, a cod gives his mother some fishy-wish lotion.

I climbed on a chair and turned on the light. What I saw on the floor gave me a big fright.

A spider was dancing on top of a frog, and the frog was dancing on top of my dog.

I like sugar on my carrots, sugar on my peas, sugar on most everything – sugar,
sugar, please.

Sally is crying –

sob, sob, sob,

She is crying because

her husband, Bob,

was late to work

and lost his job.

A robber wanted to rob a bank, but he never took a bath, and his feet really stank. So he didn't rob a bank, and he didn't rob a store — they smelled him coming, and they caught him at the door.

Most of the time, the letter “f” sounds like “finger” and “if.” But sometimes, “f” sounds like “vuh”, like when you’re saying the word “of.”

My cup is made of silver;

my dish is made of gold.

But I can't eat a bite of food — this food is really old.

I got in a lot of trouble when I made a lot of bubbles. Lots of bubbles on the floor, lots of bubbles, more and more. Bubbles of pink and bubbles of blue – the house was full of bubbles, oh, I wish it wasn't true.

I would eat a bowl of bugs if you took the first bite. I would sleep in a pit of snakes if you spent the first night. I would climb the tallest tree if you went ahead of me.
We can do so much together — if you do it first, it's better.

I put socks on a fox, and put him in a box. Then along came an ox who sat on the box.
The fox didn't want an ox on the box, so the fox ran off in his stinky-pinky socks.

Mix it up

Up until now, each “story” focused on just a few letters and words at a time.

In the “Mix It Up” section, we “step it up” by highlighting a sampling of ALL words that the child should know by now.

If the child has trouble with the “Mix It Up” section, re-read the earlier portion of this book to help the child develop better recognition of these particular words.

If I had a hot dog,

would it walk down the street?

If I had a hot dog,

would it sit at my feet?

But if I had a hot dog, then what would I eat?

Bob has a job, washing
the dog, and the dog thinks its job is running away. If young Bob wants to finish his job, he must catch the dog and teach it to stay.

If I had a box
of chocolates, and I had a pot of honey, could I mix them both together, or would it taste too funny?

My dog had a dot
on top of his nose,
but the dot disappeared when he had to blow his nose.
